Earhart mystery solved?

Posted by Janice Wood · December 15, 2010

A tiny sliver of bone found on a remote Pacific atoll may finally solve the riddle of the disappearance of Amelia Earhart, according to a story in The Telegraph. Researchers from The International Group for Historic Aircraft Recovery (TIGHAR) found the bone at the site of a castaway's encampment on the uninhabited island of Nikumaroro, along with the remains of a 1930s woman's compact – complete with residue of the makeup – a small bottle made in New Jersey in 1933 with the remnants of what appears to be hand lotion, a zip made in Pennsylvania in the mid-1930s and of a design that was never exported, and a broken pocket knife of the same brand that was listed in an inventory of Earhart's aircraft.

Letter from chapter secretary

Chapter Meeting 12/16/2010

The 2011 EAA calendars had not arrived as of the meeting date. Jim Lins gave the financial report about the Brat & Bean Feed and the Chili Fly-in Event. Dave Jeardeau informed the group about the Museum Tour to the Deke Slayton Memorial Space & Bike Museum and that the group would leave Blackhawk about 8:00A.M. in the morning. Joyce Jeardeau has been working on a Face book page for the Chapter, so if you're a Facebooker, check out the page. Our December Speaker was Scott Manley, who owns and fly's a DG-303 glider and holds a Flight Instructor Glider Certificate. Scott explained the different ways to get a glider airborne as well as explaining how to keep it off the ground with the use of no engine. Scott also demonstrated a flight simulator that can be used for flight training glider pilots. Thank you, Scott for coming to our Chapter meeting. Adjourned about 9:00 P.M.

Report From the Board Meeting Week of January 01-06-2011

Jim Lins gave the December financial report to the Board members. A motion was made by Joyce Jeardeau and seconded by Dave Van Lanen and passed to accepted the financial report as presented. Dave Jeardeau informed the group about any more information that he received about the museum tour. The Chapter Annual Banquet was the next topic discussed by the board. It was decided to keep $22.00 as the fee for the Banquet which is the same as last year with the same menu as last year. The last day for reservations will be February 3rd for the Banquet. We have gotten the EAA B-17 Tour date of June 16 thru June 20, 2011, so we will be looking for a lot of volunteer help to make it a success. The group talked about the continuing brush cutting project along the runways at Blackhawk. A brush cutter from a rental store in Madison area runs about $250.00 for a weekend. A motion was made by Don Ripp and seconded by Joyce Jeardeau and passed by the Board for the $250.00 fee. Visiting pilots expressed a concern that the brush is getting close to the runway. Meeting adjourned at 9:55 P.M.

EAA CHAPTER 93 BANQUET FEBRUARY, 12TH 2011

REX'S INNKEEPER-WAUNAKEE (Map at end of newsletter)

SOCIAL 5:30pm / DINNER 6:30 pm

Guest Speaker: Mike Johnson (Antarctica Explorer, Scientist, Technician, Mechanic and FAA Inspector)

If you think survival of a Wisconsin winter is sometimes a challenge, try spending a winter in the Antarctica. Mike will take us along on his adventure via a Power point presentation of his winter in Antarctica.(You will share the sights while sitting in the comfort of Rex's)

You are there for the duration! No planes in until spring, when the weather warms. One of Mike's many duties while on the ice was to keep the facility maintained and the 3 power plant / generators operational. (need at least one running generator to survive through the winter until the plane comes in the spring.) Mike comes to Chapter 93 via a invite by Mr. Bill Rewey as he met Mike during the final pre-flight inspection of Bill's 801 Zenith aircraft some years ago. Mikes' Wisconsin job is that of a Aircraft Inspector for the FAA out of the Milwaukee office. So some of you may have met Mike or will in the future when he stops by to inspect your project and hand you that cherished airworthiness certificate prior to that first flight. Mike will offer the opportunity for questions after his presentation from those in attendance. Make this a must attend event for you and your spouse or guest

(PS. the date is Saturday the 12th of February- Gentlemen what is the 14th of February? "HINT/ HINT")
